PEACE WITH U.S. MAY DETERMINE REPARATION PLAN

Germany's Counter Proposals Expected to Be Based on Conference With America.

Foreign Trade With This Country Vital in Gauging Ability of Teutons to Pay.

MONARCHY TALK REVIVES

Wrangle Over Payments to the Allies Gives Strength to Movement Toward Royalty.

By RAYMOND SWING. pecial Cable to The New York Herald. New York Herald Bureau.

Germany's counter proposals in con-rection with the Allies' reparations terms may wait until after peace is declared by America. Not that the German Cabinet has decided to wait until Mr. Harding is inaugurated President of the United States and to let the London conference late this nonth lapse, but a strong sentiment in this direction is making itself felt The opinion is that Germany would be unwise in discussing her ca pacity to pay until she had conferred with America

It is reasoned that since America ranked as one of the first factors in Germany's foreign trade before the war she must now play a vital role in the reparations settlement, inasmuch as Germany's payments will be chiefly

The argument is that a solution of the reparations problem depends on Ger-many changing the balance of trade from one against her to one in her favor, and that this can be done only through credits. Since England and France are not believed to be able to extend these credits, Germany, it is held, must find it imperative to post-pone any conclusive discussion of the reparations question until America has Conditions Badly Confused.

There is another reason why Germany may not make any definite counter proposals on February 28, when she is summoned to meet the Entente Pow-ers in London. That is the simple reason that the German experts them-selves have not agreed regarding what is dermany's capacity to pay. This state-ment may appear incredible to any one who is pot familiar with the confused conditions in German business and poli-tics. But it is true that an official appraisal of Germany's available re-sources has never been completed. Government experts are divided into wo groups, one of them representing and iron industries; the other represent-ing principally financial interests. The nces between these two groups the industrialists, among whom posed the signing of the Spa agreement and then prophesied a disastrous paralysis of German industry within a few months if increased coal deliveries were made to the Entente Powers. The finan-ciers held that the industrialists were verstating their case, and subsequen ents have borne out their opin-reason why Germany has so far failed to formulate concrete proposals.

Negotiations have been renewed looking to the enlarging of the Government Coalition, but they are not expected to lead to results. The initiative for the renewal of these negotiations was said to have come from the Conservatives, who two days ago declined to enter the Ministry. What it would mean to have this outspokenly monarchist party enter the Cabinet may be read in the comment by the Conservative press on the declarations by Dr. Walter Simons, Foreign Minister, in the Reichstag.

sed was a manly word." one editorial said.

Dr. Simons, said another newspaper here, should have plainly said that now, since the Entente has departed from the Versailles treaty, Germany would no longer consider herself bound by it.

It is not impossible, in the opinion of many competent political observers here, that the outcome of the reparations wrangle will be eventually to restore monarchism in Germany. The Prussian elections, which will be held on February 20, are certain to show, it is believed, a great gain by the Nationalists. This gain would not be impossible of duplication in the Reichstag elections if Parliament were dissolved now.

Even such an ardent separatist, anti-Prussian and pro-French body as the Rhineland Federationist party an-nounced to-day it would withdraw from the election.

nounced to-day it would withdraw from the election campaign and postpone its fight for freedom from Prussia. Should the monarchy be restored, it is admitted by the monarchists them-selves that it would have to be of a lib-eral nature in order to avoid a labor up-

But many political leaders who have heretofore stanchly defended the republic are now ready to compromise on a kingdom after the English pattern if it would go to reduce the bitter, wasteful sntagonism apparent in political life here.

Defiant Note Growing In Temper of Germany

Special Cable to The New York Hemali Copyright, 1921, by The New York Himali New York Herald Bureau, | Berlin, Feb. 3.

THE temper of Germany has changed unmistakably in the last few months, as was characterized by a remark made to THE NEW YORK HERALD correspondent by a German statesman. spondent by a German statesman well known for his conciliatory attitude in international affairs. attitude in international affairs. For his part, he said, he would welcome a firm refusal by Germany of the allied reparations demands, cost what it might.

"If it means occupation, let occupation come," he continued.
"A national jolt will serve to pull Germany together."

That a sensational jolt would set a Hohenzollern on the throne would, he thought, be of minor importance, provided he had limited power like that of King George of England.

Premier Demands Payment to Limit of Germany's Economic Prosperity.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—The French Parlia-

It received Premier Briand's declaration with all outward and visible signs that promise a large majority in the vote of confice which the Briand Cabinet will

The conference, he contended, was useless. All that might have been done was to hold the Germany's financial obligations. Article 240 of the Versailles Treaty settled Germany's financial obligations are Article 238 provided for the manner in which the indemnity must be paid and for turning the matter over to the Reparations Commission, said M. Tardieu. With reference to disarmament, no deliberations were needed except integral enforcement of the treaty. With respect to penalties, Article 270 provided for the seizure of the German customs.

Gov. Miller's plan for solving th ransit muddle in New York received the unanimous indorsement of the Kings County Republican executiv committee yesterday. It will issue an ddress explaining the situation.

Other important developments in the matter were:

The Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, taking note of the fact that a "serious crisis" exists in traction affairs, named a committee to consider the Governor's transit message and to report recommenda tions in regard to the situation at meeting to be held on February 17. M. Tardieu did not finish his speech to-night, but will continue to-morrow, when M. Loucheur, Minister of Liberated Regions, who was attacked, will reply. Then M. Briand will answer M. The address will contain a review of the transit situation from the viewpoints both of finance and service and will stress the need of the adoption of a constructive, broad gauge policy at the earliest possible minute. The reasons why the Republican organization appeals for support of the Governor's plan will be outlined. On the committee to prepare the address are Mr. Kracke, Marcula B. war by bringing back the body of one of this number for burial with high honors was approved to-day by the House Military Committee, when it reported the resolution of Representative Hamilton Fish (N. Y.). Action on it is expected in the House next week.

The resolution provides for the burial of the unknown soldier in the National Cemetery at Arlington, where many of America's military and naval heroes are buried. The date of the ceremony may be included in the resolution in an amendment offered from the floor of the House when the bill is under consideration. This will be determined in a conference between Mr. Fish, Secretary Baker and Chairman Kahn of the House Military Committee. It is almost certain, however, that either Memorial Day or April 6, the anniversary

The body will be brought back on a battleship, and while the resolution does not provide for such action, it is probable that President Harding would be asked to issue a proclamation to the country asking the people to pause in their activities for a brief period during the ceremony and thus pay tribute to the unknown dead. This suggestion was made by Gen. Pershing.

Indictment of two men described as aving "great influence in New York, politically and financially," was preicted last night as a probable new development in ex-Gov. Whitman's graft investigation. If an essential witness for whom a subpæna has been ssued can be found in time, Mr. Whit man will present part of the evidence to the Grand Jury to-day.

The new scandal has nothing to do with the police or other matters hereofore under scrutiny. It relates to the letting of sewer contracts in Brooklyn.
